9 - Our Rural Economy

Caibidil: Volume 1 - chapters » 9 - Our Rural Economy

County Kildare is home to a vast array of peatland types which need recognition in terms of their biodiversity, conservation and natural history. The County should use this resource sensitively and promote all the tourism opportunities possible.

Please ammend the following paragraph....

"The agri-food, forestry, and tourism sectors play a significant role in Ireland's rural economy. Kildare is well positioned to contribute more to the tourism sector with the development of a National Peatlands Park being a focal point for the greenways, blueways, and peatways providing an alternative eco-tourism visitor experience celebrating the recovering biodiversity".
